Dear Savanna Drilling hiring team,

I am applying for Drilling Rig Jobs across Alberta (Requisition 1065), targeting Floorhand and related crew roles. I am based in south Edmonton with a Class 5 licence and reliable transportation, and I am ready for 12-hour shifts and rotational hitches. I do not have prior drilling experience. What I bring is physical stamina from high-volume Fixed Ops, strong attendance and ownership, and a clear willingness to learn Savanna's safety procedures and company-paid training.

Why Savanna specifically: you are hiring for Alberta rig crews with competitive Floorhand through Driller wages, immediate benefits, company-provided PPE, and an ESSP with a 150% employer match. That combination of steady rotational work, safety focus, and investment in people is what I am looking for as I build a field career with one of Canada's larger drilling contractors (Savanna Group, subsidiary of Total Energy Services Inc., Canadian operations based in Leduc).

How I would show up on a hitch:

- Physical paced work: long shifts on my feet, lifting and moving equipment, housekeeping, and keeping the work area clean
- Safety first: follow procedures, wear required PPE, identify and report hazards, and stay coachable in safety meetings
- Crew teamwork: clear communication and reliable handoffs under time pressure, as I did coordinating Audi Southgate Fixed Ops
- Logistics ready: Class 5 licence, reliable vehicle, and willingness to complete pre-employment testing and fitness assessment

I am honest that oilfield tickets and rig-floor skills would be new. I learn fast when standards are clear, and I am motivated by hard outdoor work with a crew that takes safety seriously. Resume attached. I look forward to hearing from you.
